

Life in the trenches

It was a soldier's nightmare because of a disease that will kill you if you got it the soldier's families did not know if he had it because he would not tell them.

Machine gunners

They were used to pour heavy showers of bullets on the enemy which was good for them but bad for the enemy as they would make short work of their enemies but at the end it took about 3 men to carry them.

Charge!

It was a bad time to lift your head in the trench when a sniper was waiting for you. If you get out you were dead in seconds no matter what you do, if the opposition choose a different front line you would go and see if it was safe for your army to come but there were booby traps and you could die so pay attention.

Food

The food was not nice. It was horrible but if you did not eat you will die in hunger. When the war ended people were glad to go and eat better food at your house and not in a hole surrounded by mud. Well that were the people who survived were glad.

Transportation

- Transportation was not like are transports now the had horses and horse pulled carts. But now at the end of the war it was now cars buses. Why did it change it changed because we thought to build an armoured vehicle which we call a tank.

Foot disease

If you got foot disease you could die but the medic can try to slow it down because it can get worse and infected, and it will kill you but those after the war had it to so then they won't tell their family and if they die then the family will not know how they died and will also be sad.

Floods

- Floods were not good ¹ because it was on the floor which is where the soldier's sleep. It could also damage the trenches so the troops would get out and repair it if they live because they were under heavy fire while digging the trenches out again
